

SET-UP INSTRUCTIONS

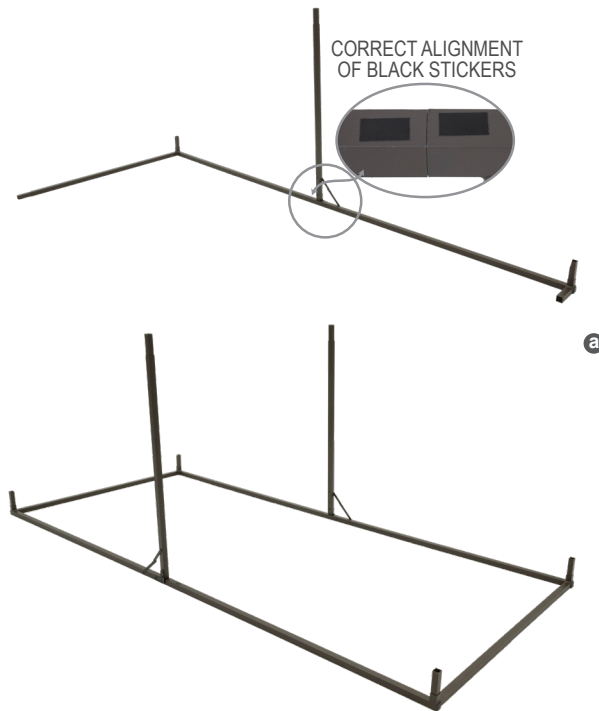

1. Remove items from package and identify each section.

- (a) Base Frame Section x 2
- (b) Top Frame Section x 2
- (c) Shooting Door Frame x 2
- (d) Side Entry Bar x 2
- (e) Blind Skin x 2
- (f) Center Support x 1

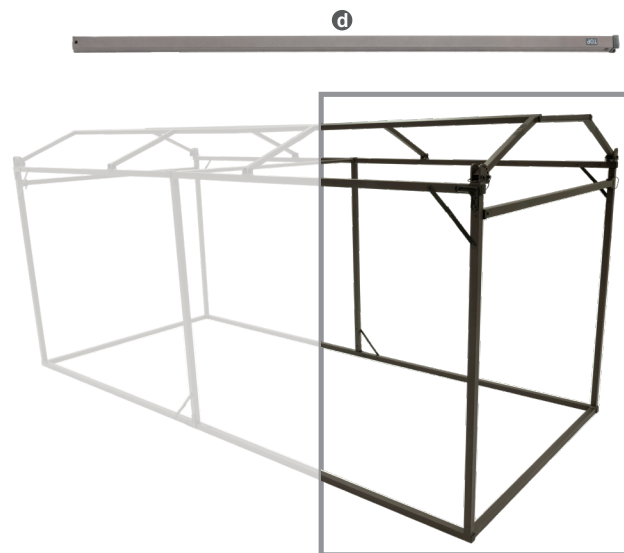

4. Locate and assemble the two shooting door (c) frame sections and attach to the top frame section using the included D-ring pins and hinge pieces.

IMPORTANT: At this point, you are able to adjust the angle of the shooting doors to suit your needs. The hinges have multiple holes allowing the shooting doors to be positioned at different angles.

2. After each section is identified, connect the two base frame (a) sections together by connecting all black stickers together.

IMPORTANT: Black sticker points are directional tubing so they must line up in order to work as they are intended to. If there is no sticker, the tube can be inserted in any direction.

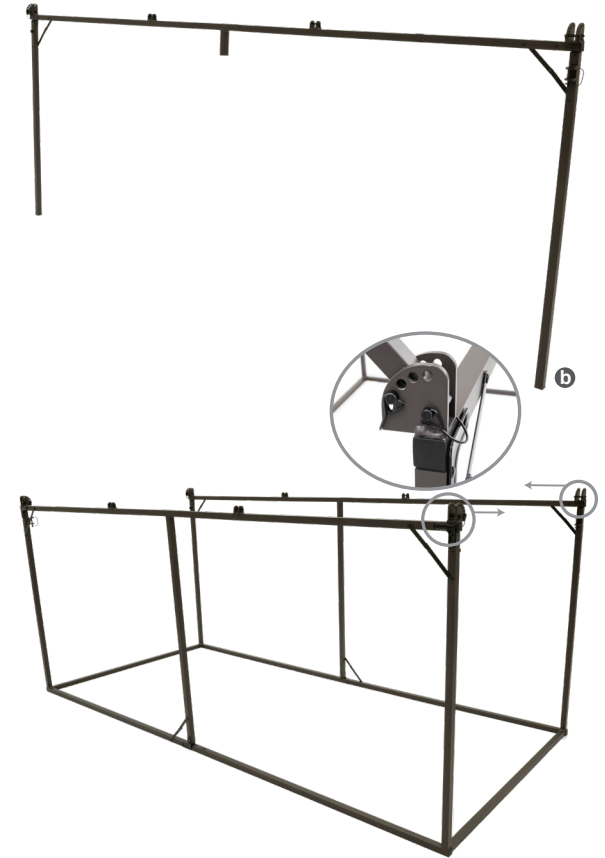

5. Attach the side entry bar (d) with the "TOP" sticker facing up. Repeat for the opposite side.

Insert the center support bar (f) for added stability.

3. Locate the two top frame sections (b) and connect tubing by lining up the black stickers. After each section is connected, attach the top frame section to the base frame sections.

IMPORTANT: The two hinge pieces for the shooting doors should have the curved side facing towards the inside of the blind.

6. Unroll the two sections of blind skins (e). Find the two top corners of each skin. These two corners have a pocket that slips over the two corners on the shooting door frames (c).

7. Now that the blind skin ⑥ has been attached by the two top corners on the shooting door frame ④, you will be able to go around the blind and attach the rest of the blind skin by the hook and loop sections located on the inside of the blind.

8. Your blind should be fully set up and you can now start the brush-in for final touches!
